2. Cancellation. OPNAVINST 5305.7.

3. Background. Rear Admiral William Thompson was the first designated public affairs officer selected for flag rank. He served as Chief of Information from 1971 until his retirement in 1975. The award bearing his name promotes professionalism and excellence -- as personally exemplified by Rear Admiral Thompson -- by recognizing Navy public affairs achievements.

4. Scope. All active duty Navy commands and activities with either military or civilian primary or collateral duty public affairs personnel assigned, except the Office of Information (CHINFO), are eligible. As in the past, regional field activities of the Office of Information are not eligible. Programs submitted for consideration may be designed and executed by more than one eligible member.

5. Responsibility

REAR ADMIRAL WILLIAM THOMPSON AWARDS PROGRAM

1. Program Objectives. The Rear Admiral Thompson Awards Program is designed to:

a. Recognize and reward the accomplishments and achievements of active duty command public affairs programs and personnel.

b. Serve as a vehicle for circulating effective public affairs programs throughout the Navy and encourage similar efforts by other commands.

2. Eligibility. All active duty commands and activities with military and civilian personnel performing primary or collateral duty public affairs responsibilities, with the exception of CHINFO, are eligible to submit entries. Participation in this awards program is voluntary. Programs must be designed and implemented by the submitting command.

3. Entry Guidelines

a. Categories. Entries may be submitted in any of the following categories:

(1) Community Relations. Long-term programs aimed at achieving cooperation and improving relations with surrounding communities, organizations, and/or publics exhibiting interest in the Navy or in which the Navy shares a specific interest.

(2) Special Events, Observances and Special Publics. Short-term programs which commemorate anniversaries, special embarkations, commissionings, innovative base tours, national or local celebrations, openings of new facilities or other unique activities aimed at directing the public's attention to the event and other programs directed to special publics for specific purposes. (Be explicit in specifying the purpose.)

(3) Emergency Activities. Public affairs programs initiated in direct response to disaster, contingency or emergency situations. Emergencies are defined as sudden, unpredictable events with high potential for adverse news coverage: fires, explosions, industrial type accidents, outbreaks of contagious or fatal diseases (such as AIDS). Emergency situations also include: protest demonstrations; allegations of improper procedures or conduct on the part of the command or Navy; the arrest of command members for actions, which will generate adverse public and/or press interest or other such incidents.

(4) Internal Communications. Specific long-term programs designed to improve understanding, efficiency, education and morale among Navy and civilian personnel and their families through implementation of effective internal communication tools or methods.

b. Entry

(1) A command or activity may submit one entry per category. At their discretion, judges may move an entry into another category. If a command has already entered the category, both submissions will be judged. All entries should be submitted under a single cover letter signed by the commander, commanding officer, officer in charge or by the public affairs officer with by direction authority.

(2) Each entry must use the format provided in enclosure (2), and include, as appropriate: samples of news releases prepared by the command; published print, audio or audiovisual products; itineraries of special events or other materials from the program. If the entry revolves around a major news event, be certain to describe your specific contributions and include print, audio or audiovisual news clips that were the direct result of the command's efforts.

(3) The actual entry, without supporting materials, should not exceed three pages of normal type on 8-1/2 x 11-inch size paper. Limit each entry with supporting data to one hardcover binder, not more than 3 inches thick.

Enclosure (1)

(4) A completed entry form as outlined in enclosure (2) must accompany audiovisual products submitted as entries. Supporting data should be submitted within the guidelines above and the three-page written portion of the entry should be able to stand on its own.

(5) Copy the three-page entry format in Word or text format to CD and label. Winners will be downloaded to the worldwide web to serve as training tools.

c. Deadlines. Although planning for a program may have been initiated prior to 1 January of the competition year to be considered, the program must have been implemented between 1 January and 31 December of the competition year. Entries must be received at Naval Media Center no later than the last Friday in April of each year. There will be no exceptions. Mail entries to:

RADM William Thompson Awards
Naval Media Center
2713 Mitscher Rd. SW
Anacostia Annex, DC 20373-5819

4. Judging. Entries will be judged under the following criteria:

a. Type of Command. Judges will consider the type of command, afloat and shore. Afloat commands comprise deployable units. Shore commands include continental United States and overseas commands.

b. Public Affairs Staff size. Judges will consider the size of the public affairs staff assigned to the command. There will be two levels of entries for each category, level one for three people or fewer and level two for four people or more. Staff size must include the public affairs officer.

c. Problem. Judges will determine whether the problem or issue is clearly and concisely defined. The goals the command sought to achieve and the command's attempts to reverse adverse or neutralize public opinion must be specifically spelled out.

Enclosure (1)

d. Planning. Judges will examine the statement of objectives and will consider the originality and judgment applied in selecting strategies and applying public affairs techniques. Judges will consider the steps leading up to the event as well as the event itself.

e. Execution. Judges will measure the quality of writing, materials prepared, activities described, publications produced, audio or audiovisual productions and other tools and techniques against accepted standards of professionalism. Judges will focus equally on the campaign and the results. They will consider whether the employment of materials and activities were used effectively in relation to the audience(s), and whether the program comprehensively addressed the stated problem.

f. Evaluation. Judging will examine the command's appraisal of how well the objectives were met, means used in arriving at each conclusion (feedback, questionnaires, witnessed and/or perceived changes or results) and estimation of need or desirability for continuing or repeating such a program.

5. Awards. First place and honorable mention will be awarded in all categories. Where entries are deemed poor quality, no award will be given. Winners in each category will receive a certificate and letter of commendation. Judges also have the option to name one winner as Best-in-Show.

Enclosure (1)

REAR ADMIRAL WILLIAM THOMPSON AWARD ENTRY FORMAT

1. Command. Include mail/email addresses and phone numbers.
2. Name and address of next senior command.
3. Category. Name one category only.
4. Afloat or Shore Command. Indicate type of command
5. Public Affairs Officer. Individual primarily responsible for designing and executing the program. Rank and full name of person to receive award.
6. Number of personnel assigned to the public affairs staff. Include the public affairs officer.
7. Problem/Background. Title of the program should be given, followed by a brief description of the problem, issue or circumstances providing the opportunity for the public affairs program. Entry should demonstrate initial research or "fact-finding" which clearly established the need for the program. This includes identifying and analyzing factors, which led to the situation or problem.
8. Planning
 - a. Objectives -- goals to be achieved in meeting the problem or issue. Be sure objectives are measurable.
 - b. Audiences -- indicate specific audiences to be targeted and why. What "markets" should your public affairs program be serving?
 - c. Strategies -- clear description of the program's strategies and how they were designed to accomplish the objectives.
 - d. Messages -- information to be communicated to each audience.
 - e. Media -- describe media used, both in order of priority and their planned effectiveness. Did you "rifle" or "shotgun" your message?

f. Events -- describe any organized events conducted in order of priority.

9. Execution. How was the plan implemented, what materials were used and were any in-progress adjustments made to the plan? How was the chain of command kept informed? What difficulties were encountered and what adjustments made to deal with the difficulties?

10. Evaluation. What means were used to evaluate the effectiveness of the program? How well were the objectives achieved and to what degree were the problems solved? Results should be measurable. How well did this program or objective earn audience understanding and acceptance? Be specific in reporting the results.

TIPS FOR A SUCCESSFUL ENTRY

1. It is extremely important to follow the entry format -- this cannot be stressed enough. If the entry does not meet these guidelines, it will be disqualified. Remember, the typed entry format may not exceed three pages. All entries must be submitted in a hardcover binder, not more than 3 inches thick.
 2. Entries are due at the Naval Media Center no later than close of business of the last Friday in April of each year.
 3. Include representative materials such as photographs, graphics, letters, scripts, news clippings, news releases, questions and answers, DVDs, CDs, videotapes, cassettes and copies of other materials that were a direct result of your command's efforts. Examples must fit in the binder. Videotapes may be separate from the binder.
 4. Examples of audiovisual coverage may be submitted on a single cassette (VHS format) or DVD disk of not more than 5 minutes duration. All audio submissions may be on audiocassette or CD. The 5-minute limit does not apply if the audiovisual material was created by the command to be an element of the plan, such as a radio or TV program. A copy of the written entry submission must accompany all audiovisual material to ensure tapes do not become separated from the entry.
 5. All audiovisual material must be clearly labeled with the following information:
 - * Name of Command
 - * Category
 - * Length
 - * Synopsis of material
- Ensure the videotape/cassette container sleeve is securely attached to the entry binder.
6. Send only materials that can be included in a 3-inch hardcover binder and/or audio/videotape cassettes and CDs. Judges will consider no other materials. Leave the cover of the binder free of drawings or other artwork. Identify your binder with a simple label, which contains the command name, category entered and the title of the program.

Enclosure (3)

7. Submissions should be focused and give specifics with some statistics as well as anecdotes and a clear evaluation of results. Stress a precise, direct writing style and a clean appearance when assembling your entry(s).

8. The entry (three typewritten pages) should be able to stand on its own, but documentation to support the entry should be included. A video is best if it is of a newscast, which reports the command's efforts supporting the objective. Print media documentation is also important and may demonstrate how the plan was put into practice. Be sure to include news releases, questions and answers and if applicable, public affairs plan.

9. Retain a copy of the entire entry. Entries will not be returned to commands. Winning entries will be forwarded to the Defense Information School, Fort Meade, MD for use as teaching aids and case studies to train public affairs personnel.
